

Woodrow B. Seals (1917 - 1990)

Woodrow B. Seals is credited with helping to establish Perkins Theological School for the Laity, formerly known as Laity Week, at Perkins School of Theology in May 1974.

An active layperson, Judge Seals served at St. Stephen United Methodist Church in Houston. As chair of Evangelism, he reached out to the local community and brought in many new members. He instituted a program of support to the needy which later became the Society of St. Stephen. He also founded a Peace Advocate program which received national United Methodist recognition and support. He acted as a lay delegate to Jurisdictional, General, and World Conferences of the Church, and served on national boards.

Judge Seals became the first non-Catholic to receive the Papal Medal Benerementi for his work with the needy, awarded in 1979 by Pope John Paul II. In 1987 he received the World Methodist Peace Award from the World Methodist Council.

Judge Seals served in the U. S. Army Air Corps in World War II and retired as a lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Air Force Reserve. Having received an L.L.B. degree from The University of Texas in 1949, he served as U. S. Attorney for the Southern District of Texas from 1961 to 1966 and was appointed Senior Judge, U. S. District Court, Southern District, in 1966. Among his judicial decisions was a 1980 ruling (later upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court) that declared a Texas law unconstitutional which denied illegal immigrant children access to free public education.

While active in the Harris County Democratic Party Judge Seals served as county chairman. During the 1960 presidential campaign he arranged a nationally publicized meeting between John F. Kennedy and Protestant clergy, which was credited with being influential in disarming the religious issue of the campaign.
